Black Hawks on early season warpath

By Kelly Fisher

The performance of a few teams early in this National Hockey League season has brought a surprise or two.

The play of the Los Angeles Kings, who surprised the Sporting and Entertainment Officers in the opening round of last year's playoffs, have continued to work some late early season play, especially that of former Niagara Canadian junior forward, Kariya, who is among the league leaders in goals scored.

The Montreal Canadiens also have opened some eyes early in the year. Not that the Canadiens weren't supposed to be competitive but after trading away Brian Skrudny and Paul Lafontaine to the Washington Capitals, the Canadiens were said to be weak defensively. Although, presently leading the Atlantic Division, that statement has proved to be wrong.

But then for the biggest surprise has been the Chicago Black Hawks. Coming off a second last finish in last year's playoffs, the Hawks have scored first. Not that the Minnesota North Stars, for first place in the Norris Division, they beat the Hawks with the least goals.

Coached by former Vancouver Canucks head coach, Al MacIsaac, the Hawks have showed their good potential with some impressive play.

The goaltending of Murray Thomson and Tony Granato has been among the best in the league. With Thomson playing the majority of the games, it has given Granato a chance to test some previous criticism, that making him sharper than ever.

The leadership by the Hawks will be with veterans Denis Savard and Scotty Bowman, scoring defencemen Doug Wilson. Leading the team in points, Savard and Wilson are proving that last year was no fluke.

Veteran Tom Lysiak, Steve Beroz and Al MacIsaac have continued to be a steady group, but the real plus this year has been the play of the rookies.

Two former Niagara Falls Flyers (James Steve Laskin and Steve Lachance), after a year with the American Hockey League (Chicago White Hawks), along with Tracy Hines, a member of last year's world championship Canadian junior team, have added some much needed mixing. Laskin is taking some of the offensive burden off of Savard and Wilson.

With former Black Hawks like Ojajärvi, General Phelan, Tom Lysiak and Scotty Bowman, the team is looking good in the wings. General Manager Ron Pollock has built a formidable Stanley Cup contender. Pollock has added a team that used to play behind the door, worked for their chances and depended on a spectacular performance from Tony O, and a slight change and that with the added scoring talent has the ability to score in any game.

Whether Thomson has reached to be always become a winner. Whether it is General A. (1992 Memorial Cup victory), a Stanley Cup (1993), or a World Cup (1994), he has consistently succeeded. He knows the game of hockey as well as any man in the game and the early season success will prove to be no fluke. They may not win the Stanley Cup this year, but he only a matter of time with Pollock.
